DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The subject matter of this application admits of illustration by a drawing to facilitate understanding of the invention. Applicant is required to furnish a drawing under 37 CFR 1.81. No new matter may be introduced in the required drawing.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 4-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rajagopalan (6,207,784) in view of Takesue et al (6,251,991). Rajagopalan discloses a golf ball comprising a core and a cover (fig 1). The core is made from a cis 1,4 polybutadiene and the cover is made from dicyclohexylmethane diisocyanate (col 12, line 15-20). With respect to the core composition, Rajagopalan discloses the core is made from polybutadiene, zinc diacrylate, organic peroxide, and zinc oxide (col. 20). Applicant also discloses identical core materials. Therefore, the deformation amounts are obvious since the materials are identical. Rajagopalan does not disclose the thickness for the cover layer. However, Takesue teaches a polyurethane cover with a thickness from 1-4 mm. In regards to claim 7, since applicant claims 0 to 40 parts the additional elastomer or ionomer is not necessarily present. One of ordinary skill in the art would have modified the thickness of the cover to achieve the desired properties.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 2-13-03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The prior art of record, Rajagopalan, discloses a golf ball comprising a core and cover made from 4,4'-dicyclohexylmethane diisocyanate. However, Rajagopalan does not disclose the core deformation from 2.5 – 4.5 mm or the golf ball deformation from 2.4- 4.0 mm. Since both values depend from the core composition the features are obvious. As shown above, the core composition disclosed by Rajagopalan is similar to the core composition disclosed by Applicant. Applicant also argues the cover material used by Rajagopalan is different from the cover material of the present invention. Applicant's arguments are not understood, both cover layers are made from 4,4'-dicyclohexylmethane diisocyanate, which are both aliphatic diisocyanates.

With respect to the drawings, every claimed feature must be shown in the drawings. Applicant claims a golf ball with a specific layers, therefore the layers must be shown in the drawings.
